SANDNES LANTERN PAVILION

In order to get the most functional space, the project covers the largest possible area allowed.

A continuous floor creates a flexible space.

Columns create benches, and are tilted to give lateral stability.

The project has a transparent structure in order to give natural light under the shelter.

The structure is positioned to create visibility.

The positions of columns create a sequence of overlapping spaces.

The structure has height so that it catches sunlight and creates visibility.

The translucent glass pattern and the structure creates a lantern effect at night.
